The narrator informs us that "The days are long and short, and the nights are long and short, and the rain is endless." Then he pulls out a banana and says that "The days are long and short and the nights are long and short, and the rain is endless." This feeling of being stuck in a loop can be interpreted as being claustrophobic, if not outright schizophrenic. Which is understandable, since the image of being trapped inside a tower might be one of our oldest memories, and perhaps even being stuck in such a dreary situation can have a similar effect on us. The narrator continues, and his words give the impression that he may be venting his frustration about the weather being to strong, and in the same breath, he says that they are "at peace." It's a bit of a mind fuck, really. The following line builds on that idea: "Here, we try to remove noise and let space become noisy." Which, combined with the visual imagery, gives the player the feeling that the narrator is actually talking inside their head, and it's having an effect on them. Let's keep listening. The next line puts to rest any doubts about the narrator's sanity or sanity: "Here, we try to remove noise and let space become noisy." That seems like a non-sequitur, yes? Well, let me explain. "Here" and "there" are not merely two sides of the same coin, like north and south. They are in no way analogous. I should know, because in my head, that makes no sense. There's north and there's north, and, when it comes to locations, they're not the same. Here is where people live and what they do. There is things that happen there, things that happen there that we're just in no position to know about. The line "Here, we try to remove noise and let space become noisy" leads me to think that in order to remove noise from there, you have to remove people. For someone who lives there, there would be no such thing. If I remove people from my life, then there will be no noise and my space will be noisy. I can't do that. And that's how I learned the

Overview Have you ever dreamed of cooking your own meals in the comfort of your own home or traveling the world while tasting exotic dishes in familiar surroundings? If you answered "yes", our soup kitchen for virtual reality will probably fill you with excitement because our dishes are ready to be cooked and served on your VR headset. But we are not talking any old heating sink. Our virtual kitchen is being created specifically for chefs around the world and built to offer a first class cooking experience in a new take on entertainment. Create your own menu, choose from our menu of 24 unique dishes and cook your own any way you like. It's like being a professional chef, transporting to your doorstep. Virtual chefs cooking! Our chefs are professionals, travel agencies, celebrities and meet-and-greets with sports figures. They are incredible cooks, and experts in the culinary world. More important than that, they care about their work. Is he serving a jumbo jerk chicken in Lagos or offering a Gioja at his home in Melbourne? As a cook, it is your job to prepare the plate fitting perfectly in the mouth of this amazing chef and for the enormous amusement of our guests. He is creating an excellent dish. He is an expert in his craft. His hands are supposed to work only on food that will later delight thousands of hungry people. There must be skill. This is boring! Everyone cooks differently. There are many chefs in the world, but not all of us chefs have the same requirements. Some are burning each other alive with their high expectations or while piping hot sausages to smokers. What other preferences do you have? Is it a boyfriend who likes hot drinks or a brother-in-law who likes banoffee? Everyone has their quirks. Some like their food finished before they get any ideas, others just like to gaze and eat, everyone has their own hidden secret. Our chefs have their own favourite recipes and preferences in what they cook. A chef is about to prepare a meal when they say "Wow! I am going to cook that dish. I want to do it the way my special friends think I should do it". - A popcorn dish for your girlfriend, - A jar of stew from the Gjoa for your family, - A Christmas carol for your brother-in-law, - A Moroccan hake for your boyfriend,

Dreii is a free-to-play puzzle game about skill, logic and friendship. It's a physics-based game where a company is trying to move a platform into the air in order to build a tower. In Dreii you use your own skills to help others in this endeavor. • MOVE CREATURES AROUND The creatures are the pieces of the tower. You use them to roll the platform into the air. They can be moved with a flick, a slide or with a gentle push. Use them to move your way up the tower. • EXPLOSIVES The thing about explosives is that they are fickle. They can be used for positive purposes, but can also bring destruction to the entire city. But if you are lucky, a tiny little creature can help you to save the day. • LOGIC Before every move you calculate how much the tower will move and take that into account. Building strong foundations and a strong base is essential for a successful move. • FRIENDSHIP Funny things happen when you're sitting together on a sofa. Dreii features all kinds of interesting situations, where each player gets their own role to play. And this is where you decide how to help your friend. You can support, struggle, distract, be an annoying friend, or even a really bad friend. FEATURES: • INTERACTIVE FEEDBACK As you are playing Dreii we know what is going on and we want you to know it. Speak to other players and let them help you. • CUSTOMISE YOUR PLAYER Every player is unique. You can customize how Dreii is going to look with lots of different colors. If you like Dreii, you can share your opinion by giving it a thumbs-up or you can download other player's themes for free. • DAILY EVENTS Every day Dreii is going to host an event. One day will be about moving, the next day about creating explosives, the next about story-telling or creating friends, the list goes on and on. Never seen the same event twice, every day is new. • 10-ABILITY With Dreii there is no "get out of jail free card" for one ability. To get to the end, you must reach a certain end-goal. Players can combine their 10 abilities to solve puzzles and reach the desired goal. The word is out about the innovative new mobile game, "Dreii

Enjoy Q: How to validate PHP form on IIS I have setup IIS to run the site. I have validated SSL. However when I send email using php mail() function I get an error that says "Certificate verification failure." I dont know why this error appears, because it runs from an IIS web site. And I live in Sweden and my IP is verified by Google. My emails are all valid. I have no idea. Have I done something wrong? Is there an IIS setting or something that make this work? Thanks. Edit: I have seen this question on stackoverflow: and this question on serverfault: IIS 6 SSL problem with sending email but as I've stated my situation is different. A: The Server Certificate must be at least a little signed by one of the CA that the server trust certificate list contains. And it must be signed by a certificate that has the same Subject Name as the subject of your certificate. e.g.: CN=my.company.com that's expressed in the Subject Name of your certificate. The server certificate not having this signature will trigger some kind of verification by SMTP when it tries to access the SMTP server with an EHLO: it will display a warning of some kind that the server certificate is not verified and that it may not be trusted. This warning seems to be printed only by a few clients and tools: some do display it, some don't. Even some SMTP clients that do display it, this will not prevent the delivery of email. e
